FLYWEIGHT CHAMPION GIVES GOOD BOYS TWENTY POUNDS AND THEN BEATS THEM

JIMMY WILDE.

Jimmy Wilde, of England, flyweight champion of the world, is one of the most remarkable fellows in the ring game.

This little chap weighs only 102 pounds, but he takes on boys weighing up to 122 pounds, the American featherweight limit, and beats them despite the handleap in weight.

Two things help him. His great science and his perfect judge of distance. He is a past master at the scientific end. He times his blows perfectly. He Memphis L, no tewer than five crasties, and not in a single case was either pilot or observer hurt.

"Since then, in nearly three years of flying, I must have seen perhaps 50 crashes. I have seen airplanes crash into hangars, stone walls, houses, lampposts, trenches, motor-forties and bridges. Personally I have crashed into a barn, on a tennis court, in a flooded field, and into a tropical forest, the last at a speed of 80 miles an hour. And in all these adventures I have not yet seen a man receive anything worse than a skinned nose as the result of a crash, and the only wound I ever got myself was made by a thorn from a prickly pear bush.

"An airman can usually tell when a crash is inevitable, and like lightning he must make up his mind how he can use his undercarriage and planes. If necessary, to best advantage, first of all to save the life of his observer and his own, and if possible to save the engine, the most valuable part of the machine.

"He may have to pancake into a patch of bush, or he may have to fly deliberately between two trees and strip his wings; but so long as he keeps his head the chances of making a successful crash are greatly in his favor."

One of the bid of $1.30 for old or new corn no. 4 track, New York. No corn agies were reported on this basis. The seaboard continues to report a dull export demand, due to tack of vessel room. Government purchases of 300,000 oats are reported. War news remains a guess. The German reply is considered a failure. Half the news auggests the enemy will guit in two to six months. The other half indicates another year of war.—Wagner & Co.

New Orleans—The market is soft. Early buyers, disappointed at the lack of rally power, and are letting go.— Shepard & Gluck
